ON THE FARM

This Column Alone Cost Us More Than $200. a Year. You Can Have it a Year for $2.00 and the Rest of the Paper for Nothing.

Devote next week to the Fair at South Weymouth. Learn something about farming and teach others what you know.

Good feeding is the forerunner of prosperity.

Sit on the milk stool—don't pound the cow with it.

Moss-covered trees will be much benefited by scraping and then white-washing with lime and wood ashes.

Wood ashes are perhaps the very best fertilizer for strawberries, and bone dust or superphosphates next in value.

If the heifer doesn't show up well with her calf and give promise of being a profitable cow better get rid of her.

This is the season of the year to buy your breeders for next year. The large breeders are selling at bargain prices in order to have the room needed for the growing stock.

It is always safest to take no chances with a bull, no matter how good his reputation beforehand. It is so often the "gentle" animals that cause accidents.

There are two crops which cannot as a rule be grown in the same parish, sheep and dogs. Sheep are most profitable but dogs are the favorite with too many farmers.

To in any way skimp the food of a growing animal, chicken, pig, lamb, calf or cow, is to invite disaster. A thrifty, growing young animal, if kept thrifty and growing, is always a money maker.

Autumn pruning strengthens growth and invigorates old trees, if properly done. Cut back decaying branches, thin out the others and the fruit will be much larger and of fine flavor. This is particularly true of peach trees.

The grower who will sort his apples into two or more grades, packed well, will get more money for his fruit than the one who throws all kinds together into a barrel and places a layer of the best ones on top.

Where it is at all possible to have the land ready, it is better to plant apple and pear trees in the fall than in the spring. Peach trees and other stone fruits are better planted in the spring. With any trees, vines or shrubs that bear planting in the fall, this season is to be preferred, for several reasons against spring planting.

September is the best month in the year to renew the current plantation from cuttings or from division of new stools. Old stools may be carefully removed and divided, so as to retain vigorous, healthy wood and roots. These should be cut back somewhat, and planted at once in freshly prepared garden soil, where they can be killed up heavily for winter.

Don't think you need pay no attention to the ration for growing birds. This consists in the use of a variety of the cheapest grains and mill products of good quality. When the birds do not have access to insects, meat food of some other form is an absolute necessity. Lime, in the form of ground oyster shells, calcareous lime or old plaster should be provided together with plenty of green food and fresh water at all times.

Starving one time and heavy feeding at another may be a good way, as one once claimed to get "streaks of lean and fat" in pork, but it won't make good regular growth in wool as many sheep owners have found when neglecting their sheep. No class of domestic animal pay better for their keep than good sheep when we consider both the mutton and fleece.—Indiana Farmer.

It is sometimes claimed that a garden becomes too rich, and that it produces an enormous growth of vines, with but little access to fruit. The difficulty is that the garden contains an excess of some kind of plant foods. Rotate the crops or make the garden in a new location, growing corn, potatoes and cabbage successively on the old location when it may be used as a garden plot again. It is doubtful, however, if a garden can be too rich.

Many pastures are poor and profitless fields of the farm when they should be rich and very profitable. The average pasture is neglected and allowed to become overgrown and brushy because the growth comes on each spring without work. There is no profit in weeds and bare spots in the pasture field. Rich and abundant pasture grasses are what is needed. To obtain rich pasture grasses the pasture soil must be rich and clean of obnoxious growth. Few permanent pastures carry as thick a stand of grass as the soil is able to support. Every square foot of the soil should be in a heavy stand of grass. The bare spots are a dead loss.

Shoe Industry.

With this week ends the season of summer-clearance sales in the shoe stores, and fall lines will take the places of the recent goods, but so broad is the field of choice that the seasons blend. The presence of lighter goods, and higher tops, in place of so many pumps and oxfords, defines the changing seasons, but in colors there is no change. Black, brown and white are still shown, only the balance has changed in favor of the black, and white is the exception. The tans are to be common for fall and winter wear, especially in men's lines, and will mark the shoe for vigorous life; otherwise, the black calf, dull finish, with medium high toe and heel designed for comfort as well as neatness, will be the prevailing style. The tendency toward safer designs is moving retailers to think of a standardization of styles and of putting a stop to fashions. The desire is to have the changes from season to season and year to year as moderate as possible, since radical changes are an influence in pushing up prices to everyone, for the benefit of a few.

The early fall trade will be largely for outdressing the scholars, and children's shoes for school wear will figure largely in sales. Beyond that there will be a movement for the hunter who will be in need of heavy wear.

For the staples the majority of styles in black will be button boots. The lower toe has been advocated, but there are indications that a too low and flat toe will not prove attractive. Especially will such styles be avoided by women who imagine that such styles seem to increase the size of the foot.

Manufacturers' preparations for next spring show that women's styles will be attractive. The pumps will be a prominent feature in the selections, and a lace oxford will be offered. It is expected that cloth-tops will figure more largely next spring than heretofore. In colors, white and tan shoes will be in the majority, and in combination, black and white shoes are to be offered. There will be variety enough to satisfy the most exacting.

For several months manufacturers of shoes have been notifying distributors and consumers the prices of shoes were to be advanced on account of the constantly increasing cost of production, which includes labor and materials as the principal factors. Now it has been definitely announced that wholesale prices have been advanced from 10 to 20 percent, and it is reported that manufacturers have been looking orders of good sizes even at this increased price, which amounts to from fifteen to twenty-five cents a pair, in some instances, which seems to show that distributors are willing to accept the situation. Spring samples have been out for some time, and in a few days customers will be following them up with order-books open for further business. That the situation has been accepted with comparatively little fuss on the part of dealers is probably due to the fact that there is considerable ready money at hand and in sight on account of the good agricultural and industrial situation, and it is probable that the advance of prices will have little disturbing effect.

With prices so advanced, manufacturers will be put to the test to make their output worth the money. The consumers who accept the higher prices and pay for them will expect that the value will be represented by the shoes. There will be inferior shoes at lower prices; the incentive is greater now than ever before, but the high-priced shoes will be expected to be as good in materials and make-up as can be produced for the price charged. For this reason the integrity of the shoe manufacturers will be put to a sterner test than usual.—Boston Transcript.

Cunning and Knavery.

Cunning leads to knavery. It is but a step from one to the other, and that very slippery. Lying only makes the difference. Add that to cunning, and it is knavery.—Brydger.

It takes ten pounds of common sense to carry one pound of learning.—Frisian Proverb.

Weymouth "Old Home Week" for 1912 is now a matter of record and also a lesson in regard to future events of that kind. Weymouth is the place of our nativity and we love every inch of the territory, and have had a more than average life of enjoyment with its people, and believe it is one of the best towns on the map.

We believe in "Old Home Week," a time to call back the sons and daughters of our town, a time to look back on the faces of long ago, and grasp once more the hands of our childhood comrades. But an "Old Home Week" to be a success must have more than six weeks for its promotion, and should never be started on so short a time and not until there has been a good, strong, and harmonious committee organized from all parts of the town.

In the present instance East Weymouth did a magnificent work in many respects, and demonstrated what can be done there, and the same thing can be done in the whole town properly managed.

Nine hundred and twenty-three will be the 30th anniversary of the settlement of the town, and while we may not be here to see it, we hope that those who may be here will succeed in having an affair worthy of the occasion, and in the meantime they ought to be one or two real genuine "Old Home Week" celebrations preparatory to that event, but they never should be started until a good, strong, harmonious committee from all parts of the town has been enrolled for the work.

Reynolds Relief Corps No. 102.

Reynolds Relief Corps, No. 102, of Weymouth, took an active part in the Old Home Week auto parade. Seventeen officers of the corps had a float very prettily decorated with flags and bunting. They received many compliments on its beauty.

The next meeting of Corps No. 102 will be on the afternoon of September 10, at 8 o'clock. All members wishing to stay for the evening are requested to bring lunch, as there is to be a dance in the evening in G. A. R. hall, from 8 to 11 o'clock, with orchestral music.

OLD HOME WEEK.

Things Which Happened and Things Which Didn't.

Last week we gave our readers a somewhat elaborate story of Weymouth's, so-called, "Old Home Week" up to date, i.e. up to Thursday night.

The events scheduled for Friday were an illuminated shore frolic, a motor parade of our seven miles of river and coast line water front, a band concert and other events at North Weymouth.

Notwithstanding the Old Colony Gas Co. made a fine showing of lights there were two serious drawbacks to the rest of the river and coasting display. While a Mississippian river steamboat had been ordered to come to Weymouth, it never came, and the only boat which was there that was new on the grass" were there but few motor boat captains who cared to enter their boat for a dead low water parade and try to push them through miles of dock mud, hence a shortage of boats and in addition to the weather conditions were very unfavorable for some well arranged illuminations by cottagers at Monaquitt, Wessagusset, Ross Cliff and other places in North Weymouth.

The village of North Weymouth however, made a display in the decorations of homes, stores and other buildings and enjoyed as much as a people could, in the cold bleak wind, a band concert by the Stetson Shoe Co. band.

For Saturday an auto parade was announced to start from Columbian square and proceed on a town sight seeing tour the Clapp Memorial field, the final objective point where there was to be a contest between the Norfolk and Clapp Memorial ball teams, music by the band and the final event of the day, a band concert at Clapp Memorial, by the Emerson Shoe band, in the evening.

We say the automobile parade was to start from Columbian square. With fond expectation people along the line watched for its coming and when it came it was "out of sight" in three minutes, the reason may be found in our editorial column. We will however say that Reynolds Relief Corps No. 102 made a very creditable appearance in the parade.

People watched for the coming of a parade of Weymouth manufacturing industries, but the only industry which showed up was that of the Boston Sugar Refinery Co. which put in a prettily decorated auto with a charming young lady scattering little packages of sweets among the people.

One of the largest crowds that ever witnessed a ball game in Weymouth turned out for the fourth game in the five game series between the Norfolk and Clapp Memorial. The C. M. A. ground was the scene of the battle and the South Weymouth nine won 7 to 5 in a miserable game of baseball. Both teams were decidedly off in fielding and, while the batting was fairly good, no spectacular plays occurred to arouse the enthusiasm of the vast audience. Both twirlers pitched good ball, but poor support behind him handicapped the high school star. The game was practically lost in the first inning when a couple of errors and two hits yielded four runs to the Norfolk side.

"Archie" Dam was back on first base for Clapp much to the approval of the C. M. A. fans. Archie got into the game with two extra bases and fielded his position perfectly, accepting two chances without a slip.

During the game the Stetson Shoe Co. band, which was in the auto parade, rendered a concert from the hill back of third base.

The record of the game follows:

Saturday evening, another band concert, this time by the Emerson Shoe Co. band, drew a large number to Jackson square. The concert was well rendered and received well merited applause.

Whitten—McCarthy.

A very pretty home wedding took place Wednesday evening at the residence of Mrs. Adelaide Trainer, 104 Fort Street, when her granddaughter, F. Adelaide McCarthy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William McCarthy of Boston, was wedded to Mr. Franklin Gray Whitten, son of Mrs. Laura Whitten. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Rufus H. Dix, pastor of the Universalist church, the double ring service being used.

The bride was gowned in a beautiful white chiffon dress of messalin, with trimming of white silk fringe. The conventional wedding veil was worn, carried with orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white asters. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Nellie Phillips of Haver, who wore a costume of old rose messalin, and carried a bouquet of white asters. The flower girl was little Rhoda Trainer, cousin of the bride, who wore a dainty costume of white. The wedding march was played by Miss Sadie Trainer, another cousin.

After the ceremony an informal reception was held, during which refreshments were served. The parlors were beautifully decorated with ferns, phlox, potted plants and palms, under the skillful hand of Lyman C. Williams.

The groom's gift to the bride was a piano, to the best man gold links, and the bride to the groom a gold pin.

A ball game between the married men responsible position in the office at the North station. Both are very popular and have a host of friends, and are active workers in the Universalist church.

No. 48.

The Unfilled Acre.

[Written for the Gazette and Transcript.]

If you are at all given to walking abroad at this season of the year, you must have noticed the marked contrast between the yards of the different houses you pass.

Without ever seeing the people who live there, you can form an estimate of them from the appearance of their door yards. The orderly person is at a vase until his yard is tidy; the thrifty man cannot rest till his little plot is yielding something for his table.

Isn't it a pleasure to see a little yard with a neat garden, the family to enjoy, or a variety of vegetables for table use? It requires very little space to yield very satisfactory results.

Some people do not seem to mind letting their yards lie neglected. Neither their barrenness nor their clutter disturbs them in the least. So there lies the unsightly yard to notify all beholders what manner of man dwells within.

Nature's first principal is that something shall grow everywhere. You never realize this more vividly than when you attempt to keep your paths and driveway clean. You have to be about as busy discouraging growth here as you are nurturing in your efforts to encourage it in more suitable places.

Take a plot of ground that has been ploughed and harrowed, leave it a month without attention, and you will have a field to fill a square foot of it that is not covered with weeds. Seeds of undesirable plants lie dormant in the soil waiting for right conditions to germinate.

If you had sown the seed of some useful plant, then it is as the weeds would grow, but they would be crowded with the weeds. As the good plants grow under your care, the weeds would have their chances diminished, according to the simple principle that two bodies cannot occupy the same space at the same time.

This is the great lesson of the unfilled acre, yet we are slow to apply it to our lives, with the result that we are not always proud of our crop of manners, morals or ideas when we most earnestly desire to be so.

Something is bound to grow in the garden of our hearts and minds. If we make a point of hunting out the choicest seeds of thought and encouraging their growth, there will be no room for ugly, useless, or wicked thoughts. If we take no pains to choose, but let come what will, we shall soon be crowded with worthless thoughts.

How many of us treat ourselves less generously than we would wish others to treat us? We should feel hurt if, in giving us a material gift, some one should say, "This isn't the best I have, but it is good enough for you."

Still, with a whole world of beautiful thoughts and characteristics to choose from, we are content to say, "Oh, well! This isn't the best I could have, but it is good enough for me."

Do you get the idea? Neither fields nor minds can remain vacant. It is for us to say whether they shall yield valuable fruits or useless rubbish.

EVERLYN EARLE.

High School Notes.

The high school opened its doors on Tuesday morning for another school year and with an excellent corps of teachers under the direction of Mr. Hilton, the principal, the beginning of the second week of school shows an average enrollment for the school and bright prospects for a most successful year for the class of 1913 and the three classes of undergraduates.

The pupils were sorry to learn on their arrival on Tuesday morning, that Miss Curtis, the guardian of room 3, was ill and unable to be present on the opening week of school. Miss Wheeler, substitute in Miss Curtis' place.

The senior class of this year is much larger than that of last year, the class of 1913 numbering nearly fifty, while last year's class had but thirty three members.

The building has been thoroughly repaired and improved during the summer months. Nearly all the rooms have been painted and all the floors have been oiled. A new large storage room for supplies and books has been built with an entrance opening into the principal's office, making the giving out of supplies much more convenient for Mr. Hilton.

The boys of the school are highly elated over the fact of having Louis Carter as an instructor in the school. Carter was one of the best pitchers ever turned out by the school and also starred in basketball, while a student in school, and he should be able to help the boys a lot in their athletics this year, providing he can find time to devote to sports.

It is reported that the Old Colony Athletic Club of South Weymouth has presented to Miss Edith C. Bicknell of Weymouth and Miss Martha Tirrell of Weymouth, membership tickets to the club for the coming winter, as a reward for standing the highest in the junior class last year. We congratulate Miss Bicknell and Miss Tirrell on their success.

Letter Carriers' Field Day.

With athletic sports, band concerts, ball games, speech making and dancing, the annual field day and picnic of the letter carriers of the Boston postal district, held at New Bedford, Mass., on Monday, last Monday, was a decided success, in spite of threatening weather all day long.

The program of sports commenced early in the morning, and continued until darkness came. A feature of the athletic program was the winning of a fifty-yard dash, for carriers of twenty years or more in service, by William Gavin, otherwise known as "Pop," of the Roxbury Crossing station. Thomas Garrity of Malden was awarded a new winter uniform.

It was the resident of South Weymouth, one of the local town winners, was prominent in the sports, winning first place in the hundred-yard dash and second place in the half-mile run. J. F. Finn finished first in the half mile race. He is from the Central office.

The three-legged and sack races drew a large crowd. Osthues and Hanlon of Boston won the three-legged race and James Barry of Roxbury came in first in the sack race.

Several games of ball were played during the day. The most exciting one was between the Tiger A. A. of Atlantic and the St. Mary's, Jr. of West Quincy, the youngsters battling for thirteen innings to a 7 to 7 tie. The Quincy A. A. nine were defeated by the Norfolk nine in a 4 to 1 game.

The pupils were rendered through out the day by the Letter Carriers' Band of Boston, and dancing was enjoyed in the dance hall throughout the day and evening.

Addresses were made by Postmaster E. C. Marshall of Boston, William F. Ford of South Boston and several other prominent city officials in this vicinity.

MODEL "30" 5-PASSENGER TOURING CAR, $1,250

The Car you have waited for

This car is built to answer the large demand for a medium priced car, having sufficient power to take a party of five anywhere. It has every good point claimed for the higher-priced cars. It is finished with the same care and attention given to all Oakland models. The upholstery is comfortable. The trimmings are of the very best material, and the body is finished with the same number of coats of paint. This model has been much admired, and its thorough examination by prospective purchasers will convincingly prove that we have not exaggerated this car by a single statement.

The same simplified design in the chassis and mechanical construction, which places the highest priced models in a distinctive class, is found in "30." In short, it is an ideal, five-passenger car of medium horsepower rating, and capable of doing the work of costlier models.

Going Fast!

The summer days are going fast
With the extremes of heat;
And many days are yet to come
Ere summer is complete.

And consequently many joys
Will in the days be found;
And pleasures too which doubtless
In many lives abound.

One of the pleasures all enjoy
During these heated days,
Is Whitcomb's Sponge Cake with Ice Cream.

To buy the best it pays.
Do not forget when making cream
To always have on hand

The well-ventilated barn is quite as essential as the warm one.

The dairy cow has a capacity for a great amount of feed and unless this feed is provided she cannot do her best.

A canning outfit in the home is a means of saving much valuable food for use in the winter and seasons when no ripe fruit is on hand. Do not allow any to waste.

As a general proposition, it is safe to say that poultry raising presents more advantages than any other single branch of agriculture.

Winter celery will need banking. Do this work on a dry day and when the ground is dry. Do not get soil into the heart of the plant, it will cause rot to set in.

Crushed bone is a valuable fertilizer for fruit trees and may be used to advantage whenever it may be secured at a reasonable price. An application of 400 to 600 pounds of bone meal per acre will prove helpful on silt and clay soils.

One reason why so many have indifferent success with poultry is that the birds are neglected during busy times. If you would make the most from poultry, arrange all other work at all times to give the birds regular good daily care. Even a few days' neglect may result in trouble
and disappointment.

There are many good and attractive breeds of chickens, yet it is not a good plan to try to keep several kinds. Any one kind is good if it is handled well.
Select the breed you like best, and stick to that breed till you are able to make them do all they are capable of doing.

Those who feed bran to horses largely are most in favor of it. One of its advantages is in keeping the horse from becoming constipated on dry feed and grain. It is a cheap and valuable feed for horses at any time, and especially while changing their coats in the spring.

Eggs and dressed poultry are perishable but in this respect are not to be compared with milk, fresh vegetables and soft fruits, which must be rushed to market,
regardless of weather, roads or market condition. Poultry products may be held for a considerable period of time to avoid sale during any temporary period
of oversupply.

The farmer who is raising a family of children and wishes them to grow up healthy and happy, should have abundance and variety of choice fruits for all the seasons. There is nothing a child likes so well as fruit, and the more of it children have the happier they will be. It is easier and cheaper to grow fruit on the farm than to pay doctor's bills.

There is nothing calculated to check milk flow in a dairy cow more effectually than being chased around a yard by a circling, long mouthed man or boy and being ever and anon pounded over head or rump with club or milk stool. Not long ago we saw a pretty looking heifer put through this kind of mill by a couple of little heathens, whose treatment would be sufficient to cause a cow to give skin
milk, sour milk or no milk at all.

There is considerable art and application and patience needed to breed winning Barred Rocks. They can not be thrown together haphazard and good results be obtained. It has taken many of our best breeders almost a lifetime to perfect and keep in perfection the strain which they are breeding, and yet they are probably more enthusiastic over the merits of their variety than are the breeders of some other fowl, which requires less skill.

Don't dip your fingers in the pail of milk to lubricate the cow's teats while milking. Good dairymen absolutely prohibit the practice because it taints the milk and consequently injures the quality of the product from the milk. Bathing the teats and bag in cool water in summer
takes off the dirt and it soothes the cow.
This cannot be done in winter or the teats will chafe and crack. Rub the teats and udder with the hand, and much of the dirt and scurf skin will come off.

When a horse gets back to his stable,
after his day's work is over, he requires,
to keep him in health and full efficiency,
a home feeling that comes of absolute rest.
To secure this, he must have a dry, clean

When you "dump" your old fire do you dump it into an ash pan? And then strew the floor and the cellar stairs with ashes when you

Wouldn't a deep Hod—big enough to hold the ashes,
easy and cleanly to carry—be better?

Crawford Ranges have the Ash Hod. It catches all of the ashes and can be emptied without spilling. Same size as the Coal Hod beside it. This feature is patented and only Crawford Ranges have it.

PROLOGUE.

It was in the woods that the girl of the Limberloes found her education, her love, her happiness and other good things, so, rightly, the air of the trees is in this story of her life. Here is a tale for lovers of the woods and for others who like a simple story told by one who knows the forest, can tell about "home folks" and can find the interest in everyday lives. Through these pages flutter the brilliant butterfly of tangled romance, the more sober butterfly, no less beautiful, of noble, quiet lives, well lived, and the gray moth of sorrow borne needlessly for many years. And if you listen closely you may hear the buzz of the little, busy existence of Billy, a young-stor's boy knowing.

CHAPTER I.

Wherein Elmore Goes to High School.

"LORRA COMSTOCK, have you lost your senses?" demanded the angry voice of Katherine Comstock as she glared at her daughter.

"Don't you 'why mother me!' cried Mrs. Comstock. 'You know very well what I mean. You've given me no length of the narrow side. She looks like a girl going to school business. I've fixed you good enough, and you're ready to start. But no child of mine walks the streets of Onabasha looking like a school girl. You look at your hair and comb it down modest and decent and then be off or you'll have no time to find where you belong.'"

"Elmore gave me a despairing glance at the white face, framed in a most becoming riot of reddish brown hair, which she saw in the little kitchen window. Then she turned and looked at the black ribbon, the comb and plastered the waving curls close to her head, bound them fast, plinned on the skimp black hat and started for the door.

Mrs. Comstock watched the girl down the long walk to the gate and out of sight on the road in the bright sunshine of the first Monday of September.

"I bet a dollar she gets enough of it by night!" Mrs. Comstock said positively.

Elmore walked by instinct, for her eyes were blinded with tears. She left the house when it turned south, she left the corner of the Limberloes, climbed a stake fence and entered a path worn length of the narrow side. She left low and scrub oak branches, she at last came to the faint outline of an old farm made in the days when the previous timber of the swamp was guarded by armed men. This path she followed until she reached a thick clump of bushes. From the delirium in the end of a hollow log she took a key that unlocked the door of a large weathered wooden box, inside of which lay several books, a butterfly apparatus and an old cracked mirror.

The little mirror, thick with grime, she turned and looked at. She set up the mirror, and, once more pulling the ribbon from her hair, she shook the bright mass over her shoulders, tossing it dry in the sunshine. Then she straightened it, bound it loosely and replaced her hat. She tugged vainly at the low brown calico collar and gazed despairingly at the generous length of the narrow side. She looked at the door and hesitated. It was as if she would have liked to be out if possible. That disclosed the heavy leather high shoes, at sight of which she set her teeth firmly and hastily dropped the skirt of the case again, she hid the key and hurried down the trail.

She followed it around the north end of the swamp, crossed a stream by a footpath crossing a farm in the direction of the spires of the city to the northeast. Again she climbed a fence and was on the open road. For an instant she leaned against the fence, staring before her, then turned and walked back. Behind her lay the land on which she had been born to drudgery and a mother who was no pretense of loving her. Before her lay the city, through whose schools she hoped to find means of escape and the way to reach the things for which she cared. When she thought of how she looked in the mirror she turned and looked at the fence and groaned. When she thought of turning back and wearing such clothing in ignorance all the days of her life she set her teeth firmly and hurried toward Onabasha.

She approached the great stone high school building, entered bravely and inquired her way to the office of the superintendent. The lady in the hall should have come the week before and arranged for her classes.

"I finished last spring at Brunswick school, district No. 8," said Elmore. "I have been studying all summer. I am quite sure I can do the first year work if I have a few days to get started."

"Of course, of course," assented the superintendent. "Almost invariably country pupils do good work. You may enter first year, and if you don't fit we will find it out speedily. Your mother will tell you the list of books you must have, and if you will come with me I will show you the way to the auditorium. It is now time for opening exercises. Take any seat you find vacant." He was gone.

Elmore stood before the entrance and stared into the largest room she ever had seen. The floor sloped down to a grating stage, on which a band of musicians, grouped around a grand loom pointed to Comstock. Elmore stared speechless. When and how did it happen? She could feel the wave of smothered laughter in the air around her. A rush of anger turned her face scarlet and her eyes dim. A hot answer was on her lips. The voice of the professor addressed her straightly.

"This proposition seems to be beautifully demonstrated, Miss Comstock," he said. "Stray you can tell us how you did it."

"That word of praise saved her. She was all right, straight and handsome as she arose."

"Of course I can explain my work," she said in natural tones. "What I can't explain is how I happened to be so stupid as to make a mistake in plans, were tuning their instruments. Every one else was seated, but no one paid any attention to the white faced girl stumbling blindly down the aisle next the farthest wall. So she went on to the very end facing the stage. No one moved, and she could not summon courage to crowd past others to several empty seats she saw. At the end of the aisle she paused in desperation as she stared back at the whole forest of faces, most of which were now turned upon her.

In one burning flash came the full realization of her scanty dress, her pitiful little hat and ribbon, her big heavy shoes, her ignorance of where to go or what to do, and from a sickening wave which crept over her she felt she was going to become very ill. Then out of the mist she saw a pair of big brown boy eyes three seats from her, and there was a message in them. Without moving his body he reached forward and with a pencil touched the back of the seat before him. Instantly Elmore took another step, which brought her to a row of vacant front seats.

Behind the single behind her. The knowledge that she wore the only hat in the room burned her. Every matter of moment and some of none at all cut and stung. She had no right. Where should she go when this was over? What would she give to be on the trail going home.

Before she realized what was coming over her head and the room was emptying rapidly. Elmore hurried after the nearest girl and in the press at the door touched her sleeve timidly. "Will you please tell me where the freshmen are?" she asked huskily.

The girl gave her one surprised glance and drew away. "Same place as the freshmen women," she answered, and those nearest her laughed.

Elmore stopped praying suddenly, and the color swept into her face. "I'll wager you are the first person I meet when I find it," she said and started on her way to the study where she had been told to go. She was alone, and Elmore followed in different branches. She could not escape the second time, and when she came again she was asked a question she could not answer.

"Have you not decided on your course and entered your books?" inquired Elmore of the professor.

"I have decided on my course," replied Elmore; "I do not know who to ask for my books."

"Ask the professor was bewildered. 'I understood the books were furnished,' faltered Elmore.

"Only to those bringing an order from the township trustee," replied the professor.

"No! Oh, no!" cried Elmore. "I will get them tomorrow," and gripped her desk for support, for she knew that she was not true. Four books, ranging from algebra to a dollar and a half apiece, would her mother get them? Of course she would not, could not.

Did not Elmore know the story by heart? The answer was negative, and she went on to clearing and farm. Tax on all those acres, recently the new gravel road tax added, the expense of living and all the work of two women to meet all of it. She was sure to think she could come to the city to school. Her mother had been right. The girl decided that if only she lived to get home she would stay there and endure the torture. Bad as what she wished to escape had been, it was nothing like this. She never could live down the movement that she had through the fact that she had expected her books to be furnished. Her mother would not get them. That settled the question.

But the end of misery is never in a hurry to come, for before the day was over the superintendent entered the room and explained that pupils from the country were charged a tuition of $20 a year. That really was the end. Previously Elmore had canvassed a dozen wild plans for securing the money for books ranging all the way from offering to wash the superintendent's dishes to breaking into the bank. This additional expense made the thing so wildly impossible there was nothing to do but hold up her head until she was out of sight.

THE FIRE EATING TRICK.

The first known fire breather was a Syrian slave named Eunus, a leader in the service war in Sicily, 130 B. C. He pretended to have immediate communication with the gods. When dangerous situations arose he was called upon to inspire his followers with courage by breathing flames and sparks from his mouth. In order to perform this marvelous feat he placed a nut at both ends, and having fixed it with some burning substance, he put it in his mouth and breathed through it. The same trick is performed today in an improved manner. The juggler rolls together some fax while it is still burning. By this means the fire is retained in the ball for a long time. He slips this ball into his mouth unperceived and breathes through it. His breath revives the fire, and he continues no injury so long as he inhales through his nostrils only.

ON THE FARM
This Column Alone Cost Us More
Than $200. a Year. You Can Have it a Year for $2.00 and the Rest of the Paper for Nothing.
The recent fair demonstrated that Weymouth can make as good a showing of field and garden products as any town, county or state in the Union and if it can be done on a small scale, why not develop our resources and enlarge the scale.
Make more of the farm, garden and orchard.
Don't forget to protect those young grape vines you set out last spring.
The wise man uses mixed foods. He feeds all parts of the animal system.
A warm poultry house tends to make the fowls sluggish and unproductive.
Pullets are the best layers. Old hens bring down the egg record. Sell off the old hens to make room for the maturing pullets.
Selling with smaller and better pastures
will give better results with the cows
from the fact that they are not required to exercise excessively in search of feed.
Green corn fodder should be fed to the cows liberally in the fall while it is green and succulent.
It doesn't matter why you elect to breed Barred Rocks for fancy, for the farm flock or for your own little backyard supply. In any event, you can be assured of plenty of big brown eggs and toothsome broilers, roasters and friessees when your table needs them.
Two very important points in cherry growing should be studied closely before going into the business. The first is the location of the orchard. The cherry should be planted on high, rolling, well drained soil, for the trees will not thrive on wet, soggy land. A rich loam inter-persed with sand is the ideal soil, as it warms up early and gives life and vigor
to the tree.
If you have not already done so, make a start this fall to planting small and large fruits. Also plan ahead to give the fruit plants the best of care after they have been set out. Those who make a failure with fruits are those who plant and then drop them into holes made with a dibble, or crowbar. It is a common practice in the East to plant the cuttings between early cabbages and then to cultivate the horseradish after the cabbages are removed, as the horse-radish is not sold until late fall and winter.
That New England's farms, frequently
referred to as worn out or abandoned, are easily susceptible of becoming the richest in the country; that much of the 4,000,000 acres which have gone down to hay, can be brought back to tillage and that a food staple for which $20,000,000
is now annually spent in other markets
may be produced within her own limits,
is the statement of such a noted authority as Truman G. Palmer, secretary of the United States Beet Sugar Industry, who
for years has made a most careful study of agricultural methods both here and abroad.
One of the fundamental truths that has been thoroughly established is that "crops are not made out of nothing," but that certain chemical elements are as necessary in the growth of crops as are heat and light; that some of these elements must be fed to the plants through the soil (the laboratory) and that the farmer (the chemist) through the art and science of agriculture, must provide the food and prepare his soil for putting it into proper solution.
The man who rents or purchases a farm, does so with the idea of securing a place upon which to conduct his business. But he, too, is in a correspondingly favorable position as regards necessary expenditures for living expenses. Together with his place of business, he gets a house to live in, most of his fuel and the opportunity to produce for table use,
at slight cost, such necessities as vegetables, fruit, milk, butter, eggs and a considerable amount of the meat required by the family. These items take a large part of the average city salary, and therefore an annual income of a thousand dollars in the country is relatively much greater than a similar amount in the city.

Following Are a Few of the Items
Which Appeared in the Gazette
Years Ago This Week.
THIRTY-THREE YEARS AGO
At a meeting of the trustees of the Tuffs Library held yesterday afternoon it was voted to appropriate $2500 for the immediate purchase of books.
The Gen. Bates, Gen. Putnam and Active Co's. have asked permission to attend
the muster at Hingham, and the Engineers have voted to allow them to attend, provided they return the engine immediately
after they have done playing.
The money for the grand stand at the Fair Grounds, has been mostly raised, over $100 having been subscribed, and the work commenced. Messrs. Albert Tirrell, Geo. B. Clapp and Joshua Wilkins have located the stand, which will be 110
feet by 30.
On Saturday evening last a new company was formed to man the Union Ra-gine and organized by the choice of the following officers: Foreman, Robert Gollespie, 1st assistant, Richard Tipping, 2d assistant, John W. Hattcliffe, clerk, Geo.
Smith; board of government, John E.
Eastwood, Wm. H. McGee, Andrew
Sims, Martin Dolan, John Hafferty.
At the caucus of the Butler Democrats of Weymouth, held Wednesday evening,
the following gentlemen were elected delegates to the State Convention:—F.
H. Torrey, H. A. Miller, L. H. Lord,
Orrinell, J. A. Connell, A. Tirrell,
2d, A. S. Howe, L. B. Tirrell, D. M. Kidder, J. W. Hart, Michael Ford, A. E.
Lovell, James Moore, A. A. Holbrook, C.
H. Lord.
Republican Town Committee—James
Humphrey, John W. Bartlett, Geo. L.
Newton, Henry Stoddard, Peter W.
French, Benj. S. Lovell, Martin E. Kistner, Nathan D. Canterbury, Wm. S. Wallace, Augustus J. Richards, David L. Sterling,
Samuel W. Reed, Edgar C. Porter, Wm.
Nash, Geo. F. Hayden, F. Dexter Pratt,
Wm. H. Sargent, No. 10 Vine St., Louis A.
Cook, Charles W. Hastings, Noah B.
Thayer.
TWENTY YEARS AGO.
Mr. Bates Torrey has resumed his work as principal of the shorthand and typewriting department at Comer's Commercial College, Boston.
The first social of the season was held in the Universalist church vestry, South Weymouth, last evening. The main question of the evening was, "How did you earn your dollar?"
At the regular monthly meeting of the South Shore Co-operative bank held at the banking rooms Tuesday evening, $1,000 was sold at a premium of 10 cents per share.
Labor Day morning the North Weymouths came, saw and conquered the Insects by a score of 6 to 0. A crowd of about 1500 people saw the game and the
enthusiasm of the friends knew no bounds.
Robert McFawn has the honor of having captured last Friday the largest rock-crab known to have been taken from Whit-man's pond for a long time. It measured 26 1/2 inches long, circumference 11 1/2 inches and weighed 4 lbs., 10 to 12 oz.
A center of attraction has been Mr.
Theo. P. Willey's greenhouse, and the attraction by a score of 6 to 0. A crowd of about 1500 people saw the game and the
enthusiasm of the friends knew no bounds.
It had three blossoms, on Tuesday night
one and on Wednesday night four.
The school committee at its last meeting voted to establish a teacher's training school. Graduates of the high schools wishing to train for teaching are requested to apply to Mr. I. M. Norcross.
John E. Stoddard and F. H. Torrey reached home Sunday night after an absence of nearly six weeks. They report pleasant weather and a most enjoyable trip. Most of their time was spent in Liverpool, London and Paris and in coach
riding in Ireland.
One of the most pitiful sights to be met with upon our streets is the man who has nothing to do, except to loaf about the corners and wait for some opportunity to procure a little liquor, the stronger the better. There are two or three just such objects to be seen in this village almost any hour of the day and they furnish a forcible example of the evils of drinking.

Crawford Parlor Stoves
"Crawford Parlor." A genuine indirect draft stove with full return flue; the smoke passes down between the firepot and the outside casing of the stove to a flue
beneath the ashpan, thence up and out through the back smoke pipe to the chimney, giving more heat and burning less coal. The grate center slides forward for dumping. Large clinker door;
wide, deep ashpan; dust damper; nickel rails removable. Four sizes.
"Tropic Crawford." With or without down draft back pipe. Draw center grate. Best stove made at the price.
Nickel rails removable.
Crawford "Wood Parlor." In this new heating stove for wood the front door swings open to give the effect of a fire place. By moving a slide in this door the fire can be seen without opening the door itself. The slide openings are protected by wire gauze. The main top swings to one side and underneath it is a large plate that lifts to admit large pieces of wood.
This stove is made in both direct and indirect draft styles. It is strongly made and very handsome. Three sizes, to burn 10, 22 or 25 inch lengths.

We again wish to announce the winning numbers given out at the Weymouth Fair that entitled the lucky persons to a Reznor heating stove; Thursday, No. 375, Friday, No. 1828, Saturday, No. 2038. Mr. H. F. Vining, 75 Columbian Square, South Weymouth won on No. 375. Miss Vera Pratt, Mann's Corner, North Hanover and Mr. L. E.
Schofield, 22 Randall Avenue, East Weymouth won on No. 2038. There are still three heaters to be given away, one on No. 375 and two on No. 1828. If you have any one of these numbers, please notify us at once. Many other besides these six will find that the Reznor heater will be of value to them. These heaters are of the best make and will give satisfaction. They can be used on the chilly days in the early fall in the morning and evening, as unlike a stove or a furnace there is no expense except when they are actually needed for the purpose of heating.

Punch's To Men Buying Hats

"If possible get a hat that fits."
"If the hat makes your nose bleed, it is too small. If it makes your ears ache, it is too large. Bear this formula in mind and you cannot go far wrong."

This is sound advice to men who have not yet found the right hat store.
It is superfluous to men who buy at the "store just around the corner." We have the right hat for every man, and our expert assistants will not let him wear the wrong hat away.

GATHERED UP.
Always use your own brains rather than those of others.

Some of us are so unlucky that just as we feel we are getting to the top the bottom drops out of things.

The man who always says just what he means may be an admirable character, but he wouldn't shine in the diplomatic service.

Parting a fool and his money is what makes him wise.

A man's idea of popularity is being missed when he's on his vacation, but few men ever see.

It doesn't take very long for the worst to happen.

EAST WEYMOUTH AND WEYMOUTH CENTER.

—We received the first of the week of a letter from George D. Cushing, a former resident of this place, now sales manager of the Victor Typewriter Co., written in San Francisco, California. Among other pursuits Mr. Cushing has continued to attend some of the ball games of the Pacific coast league and had the pleasure to witness Dan Howley, the boy catcher for the Portland, Oregon team, play. Mr. Cushing states that Dan is throwing in grand style and hitting and fiddling with the best in the league. He further states that the opinions of the critics on the coast are that Dan will make the major leagues next season.

—Henry Duffy has returned to his duties in New York, after spending his three weeks vacation visiting friends in town.

If weeds are allowed to lie in the garden over the winter the seeds will be ready for business in the spring, long before it is time to plant vegetables.

Where potatoes are kept well in the ground it is well to allow them to remain undug till late in the season. They will keep better in the ground than in storage.

If the brood mare must be worked heavily during the fall months, her spring foal should be weaned early in the fall. It will be better for both.

Bank up celery for blanching as the cool days of fall come on, and cover the rows with straw or old carpets on frosty nights removing the cover during the day.

If your neighbor is fool enough to sell his best cow it may be a good investment for you to buy her, but be sure that he is a fool and that the cow is a good one before buying.—Iowa Homestead.

Send for and look over fall catalogues. Make selections of seeds, bulbs, plants and trees for fall planting. Some of these must be planted in the fall and at no other time. Some may be planted in other seasons yet they will do better if planted in the fall.

Spraying in winter is for but moth and various leaf rollers and also for apple scab. Another spraying and probably the most important of the season is the one that immediately follows the blossoming period and should be applied as soon as the petals drop.

Compost the manure; use one barrel of it with a horse load of loam, a layer of earth and a layer of manure; let it lie ten days, then mix it thoroughly, allowing it to lie some time longer before using. This composition makes the cheap fertilizer in the world. For strawberries it is unequalled; it has no equal for producing large berries and large crops.

If the horse's hoofs are hard and inclined to be "shelly" do not let anybody put oil or grease on them, for this only clogs the hoof material, which should absorb water instead of repelling it. Such hoofs are best treated by soaking them several hours together in warm water slightly salted or by turning out the horse at night in a pasture where he will have the hoofs wet in the dew.—Farm Progress.

Trampling land by stock in winter is a practice far too common. It is the custom of some farmers to allow their stock to range over the fields as soon as the latest crops are gathered, and even during winter without regard to the condition of ground, whether it is water-soaked or not. There is no practice more general and none which destroys the very life of the land more quickly than packing clay soil when it is wet, converting it into a cement like substance with its fertilizing elements rendered almost wholly inoperative.

General directions for cutting corn for silage is to cut it when the kernels of corn have begun to dent well. However, experience of practical dairymen and beef-growers has proved that corn for silage is best when it is cut at a more mature stage, that is, when all of the grain is deeply denting, hard and almost mature, with not more than one-half of the husks and blades of the corn green. Greener corn makes juicier silage, yet this silage contains less actual feeding value.

It is more sour, and perhaps is more apt to spoil in the silo before complete settling and cold weather come about to aid in preserving.

What are the profits in poultry is the question most asked by the beginner. In the poultry business, like all other lines of business, there is no stated profit. It depends wholly upon how much knowledge the beginner has; the location of the plant, large or small, soil conditions, nearness to railroads and markets. There are many successful poultry raisers, but net profits are seldom just alike, due to different conditions, the skill of the operator, etc. There is a good profit in poultry for the money invested, to any one who is willing to work and learn. The average poultry raiser, large and small, commercially is making a net profit of $1.50 to $2.50 per fowl. There are exceptions and these make a higher average.

Monday Club.

The board of directors and committees of the Monday Club held their meeting for this week on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. Will Bailey of Myrtle St., East Weymouth. A busy afternoon resulted in several important questions decided for the coming year also a number of new names being added to the membership list.

Mad at Paint.

25c a gallon for paint is about $2.50 on the average job, and lots of men waited last year for that; but they didn't reckon; they got mad; wouldn't pay it.

There are times to get mad and refuse to pay; but when one's property needs protecting is no time to get mad and not paint.

Besides, it costs more to get mad and wait than to paint.

Getting mad doesn't do any good to your property; paint does it good by keeping-out water; no water no rot; no paint, some water and rot; and a little rot is more than enough to make a man liberal toward his painter and paint.

Paint costs not a cent. All the paint in the world, so long as it keeps out water, costs not a cent.

Have fruit at work, gardeners and farmers in general any rights in the property of their labor or right to protect it, it is getting to be a serious question. Boston daily papers say that steam trains, electric lines and automobiles are constantly coming with the result of theft raids on outlying fields. In Brookline a few days ago a horticulturist paid a charge of $100 for a theft and is now under arrest for manhandling and really the shot gun seems to be the only alternative for the producer, as no municipality can put a line of officers around every little plot of ground on which the husbandman has labored. As things are now going on, even in Weymouth, a thousand officers would not more than be sufficient to guard the gardens and orchards from robbers. We hear it from all parts of the town and in regard to flowers, fruits and vegetables which are being stolen by the wholesale. The shot gun may seem harsh but it now seems to be the "court of last resort."

THOMAS B. LOUD DEAD.

Past Commander of Reynolds Post 58, G.A.R., Dies at His Home in East Weymouth After a Long Illness.

Thomas B. Loud, a Civil war veteran, and a past commander of Reynolds Post 58, G.A.R., passed away at his home on Broad street, East Weymouth Wednesday morning. He had been ill some time. He was a son of Daniel and Sarah (Rogers) Loud and was born in South Weymouth in 1837. He was one of a family of ten children and received his education in the Weymouth public schools and learned the shoemaker's trade. Mr. Loud enlisted in Co. C, 4th Mass Regt. M. V. M., on April 17, 1864, after serving under Gen. B. F. Butler at Newport News, Fort Monroe and Hampton Roads, receiving an honorable discharge on Boston Common on July 22, 1865.

Later he was enlisted for the war in Co. H, 55th Mass. Regt. and served in several battles and was at the fall of Petersburg on June 26, 1865, he was honorably discharged from the army.

He returned to East Weymouth where he has since made his home. He became a member of Post 58 in 1870 and was installed as commander Jan. 17, 1898, after passing through the various offices of the order. He is survived by a widow. Funeral services will be held this (Friday) afternoon.

OLD FOLKS' GATHERING

Nineteenth Annual Reunion of Old Folks Held Wednesday in Union Church, South Weymouth, With Grand Success and Large Attendance.

One of the most pleasing annual reunions that the town of Weymouth has seen was held on Wednesday of this week in the Union church in South Weymouth when the 19th annual gathering of Old Folks was held.

The weatherman must have been included in the two hundred invitations sent out as he selected perfect weather for the old people to get out and greet old friends and shake hands with former acquaintances and look into the faces of friends they have not seen since the old folks gathering of 1911.

The event this year was in charge of the following officers of the Old Folks association: H. Wilbur Dyer, president; H. H. Joy, vice president and Miss Florence K. Howe, secretary and treasurer. The above officers were assisted by a corps of able aids and through their labor and eagerness the 19th annual reunion goes on record as one of the most successful gatherings of the association.

All during the morning on Wednesday, automobiles and carriages brought the old folks from far and near, while not a few came on the street cars and on foot. The association provided automobiles for those who were unable to attend without assistance and also for those who lived any great distance from the church. The transportation committee consisted of the following South Weymouth gentlemen: F. W. Loud, chairman; H. H. Joy, A. B. Raymond, A. C. Heald, H. B. Reed, H. B. Dyer, E. B. Nevins and W. L. Hawes.

From ten o'clock until twelve-thirty an informal reception was held and many were the old-time frolics and events that were talked about and laughed over by the old folks who were constantly arriving.

As the new comers arrived they were greeted by the members of the reception committee and relieved of their wraps. After about the hour of twelve the ladies of the association and vestry and chat with their friends. The reception committee this year was Rev. and Mrs. L. W. Attwood, Rev. and Mrs. A. V. House, Rev. and Mrs. H. C. Alvord, Rev. W. W. Rose, Mrs. R. W. Hunt, Mrs. A. C. Heald, Mrs. Gordon Willis, Mrs. L. A. Cook, Mrs. Francis Fearing, Mrs. Anna Cady and Miss Lina Loud.

At twelve-thirty the guests sat down to a delicious banquet provided by the ladies of South Weymouth, who are to be congratulated on their fine dinner, with a variety of eatables and a plenty of the dinner was served in the spacious vestry of the church and was in charge of Mrs. J. Forrest Torrey and the following ladies: Mrs. Marshall Sprague, Mrs. William Wagner, Mrs. J. Ellis Gardner, Mrs. F. W. Loud, Mrs. Josiah Prosser, Mrs. Louis K. Jones, Mrs. Elmer Tracy, Mrs. Fred Blanchard, Mrs. Nathan Bates, Mr. Arthur B. Tirrell, Mrs. Frank Tibbitt, Miss Emily Loud and their assistants. A decided feature of the dinner was the gift to each person of a pound box of old fashioned pink and white peppermint dots donated for the occasion by Rev. D. W. Waldron of Boston, who was present at the gathering.

At the conclusion of the dinner the party adjourned to the auditorium, which was artistically decorated with ferns, actors, roses, salvia, sunflowers and various other kinds of foliage of the season. The decorating was under the direction of Mrs. H. B. Reed and assistants. At two o'clock the business meeting of the association was held and reports of the secretary and treasurer read and accepted. The officers for the ensuing year were elected and are as follows: G. L. Barnes, president; Rev. A. V. House, vice president; Miss Florence K. Howe, secretary and treasurer; executive committee, A. B. Raymond, Henry S. Stowers, Mrs. J. Forrest Torrey, Mrs. Frank Stowell, Mrs. Nelson Gay and Mrs. Nathan Bates. During the afternoon an orchestra consisting of Miss Edith F. Raymond, piano; Miss Hazel Clark, violin; Harold Raymond, flute and Seth C. Vining, clarinet rendered pleasing selections, Miss Edith F. Raymond gave several numbers on the organ and Percy F. Baker sang a number of solos, which were highly applauded. Miss Hazel Clark of Hingham rendered violin solos very beautifully and the above program was completed with appropriate remarks by Rev. D. W. Waldron of Boston and Rev. Judson Clancy, a former pastor of the Union church in this village. Cornelius Tirrell, aged 93, a former resident of South Weymouth, now of Wollaston, held the distinction of being the oldest gentleman present, while Mrs. A. M. Daggett, aged 89, was the oldest lady to attend the affair. After the musical program and the business meeting ended, a social hour was held and then wraps were secured from Mrs. William Bowker, who had charge of the clothing, goodbyes were said and the old folks departed for their homes to enjoy their box of peppermint and pleasant memories of a delightful day spent at the 19th annual reunion of the Old Folks association in 1912.
